TOPIC

Work Mate Marry Love: How Technology is Shaping Our Future in a Covid-Influenced World. At a stunningly rapid pace, technology is altering our deepest and most intimate experiences. What will happen to our most basic notions of humanity as we entangle our lives and emotions with the machines we have created? During this webcast, Harvard Business School professor and former Barnard College president, Debora L. Spar, will share findings of her new book, Work Mate Marry Love: How Machines Shape Our Human Destiny, and offer an incisive and provocative account of how technology has transformed our lives in the past, and how it will do so again in the future. Debora's insights are particularly timely given the onset of Covid-19 and her research of questions including what will happen to work and love as our relationships migrate from the real world to the Internet? With probing questions posed by author and workplace expert, Debbie Epstein Henry, Debora will share her predictions for the future of our most profound relationships and attachments. Steering clear of both techno-euphoria and alarmism, Debora will demonstrate that our most cherished feelings and values can flourish in new circumstances, and she will offer a bold and inclusive vision of how our lives might be changing for the better.

DISTINGUISHED GUEST

Debora L. Spar is the MBA Class of 1952 Professor of Business Administration at Harvard Business School and Senior Associate Dean of HBS Online. Her current research focuses on issues of gender and technology, and the interplay between technological change and broader social structures. Debora tackles some of these issues in her new book, Work Mate Marry Love: How Machines Shape Our Human Destiny. She served as the President of Barnard College from 2008 to 2017, and as President and CEO of Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts from 2017 to 2018. During Debora's tenure at Barnard, she led initiatives to highlight women's leadership and advancement, including the creation of the Athena Center for Leadership Studies and the development of Barnard's Global Symposium series. Before joining Barnard, Debora spent 17 years on the HBS faculty. A prolific writer, Debora has authored many acclaimed books including Wonder Women: Sex, Power, and the Quest for Perfection. She and her husband are the parents of three grown children.
